Call iln Oregonian. MONDAY MORNING, SEPT. 17. 1888. THE VILLARD EXCURSION. Undoubtedly the great excursion costs a great deal of miney. Somewho criticize without judgment are denouncing it as wasteful and ridiculous excess. They seem to regard i mere junisting excursion, without any aim on the part of its projectors beyond feast ing and display. It is a great mistake. Certainly the northwest, it whose into est this great exentation is conducted, should not enterin such an epipion. The effort is at the the benefits will inure to the great country which it traverses, and in particular to the the people beyond the Eocky mountains-but now, by the Northern Pacific, made better known than any of the newer parts of the United States.

As an advertisement of the northwest, this onld one-hundredth part of the effect have luced a the way of bringing this section to the sitention of the whole country.

Every journal, it in United States and Canada had a full report of the completion of the road, including the speeches and an account of the ee; and very many of them had a history of the road and descriptions of the conntry traversed of it. By concerted arrangement through the associated press, much of this matter had been supplied in advance. The reat number of prominent hewspapers which had been invited to send reprepentatives apread full details of the event before the whole people of the United States. All the journalists have been busy that ighout the trip in writing accounts of the country, and the excellence and mount of the work thus done can be apprecia ed only by those who are fortunate enough to see the journal they represent, now arriving by the daily mails. No railroad company over ande a better livestment than the Norther Pacific has it ale in carrying this excursi through. Great as is the cost of it the outlawill come back sen times over, both to the company and to the country. Indeed the results will be of commandable value. Thousands and tone of themsands will be brought into the northwest through this matrumentality, where they will establish borner, develop the cour states, and create a traffic for the road which will not only be perpetual, but will increase in a geometrical matio. In this view the excurion, as a business enterprise, is wise, both in Whatever may be said about it by the advocates of rival scade, who, both in the east and in' California, are incomant in their attacks hold the country it serves in bandage to them selves, surely the northwest, whose hope is this great northern line, sught not to complain sgainst an undertaking which is doing more to bring it into notice and to means its develop-ment than all char things, taken together, over yet attempted. It has been estimated that this xcursion will cost from two hundred to three the largest of these cums, in what way could the money be expended where. by an equal abrantage sould be secured to the sountry and it, the read? As a means of 160 acres cach. The grand total of hornesteals spreading information about the northwest this taken up to June 30, 1883, was 608.003, disurpasses ever-thing that could otherwise be many years to accomplish by other means. As a legitimate investment, for business purposes the Northern Pacific management could have done nothing better for the country, or for pany, nor, indeed, anything to be com-with it. 'Oh, no; I turned off the gas," said Chand, propsitiv. 'Don't yeu think it was a good way o keep people from staring at you sand melping when they found that is groom didn't come?" "Yes, I see now, and I am sore I sin very much obliged for your though full unless, but what will pape and mamma think has become of me?" "That's act' I exclaimed. "We forgot all about it. Stop the carriage and 'I'l can bean," with it hid and found the church lighted up age, n, and a bigger crysed than ever inside, and Mr. and Mrs. Lord rushing about in every direction in easarch of their daughter.

I was a little ashemed atfrat, our remembering how much the bide had been spared by curplen. I welked boldy up to the "distracted parents," and began to explain the whole thing. This took some time, but I teld the story as quick as I could, and I had scarcely finished when back came the carriage with Comain I had severy it strong enough to go through with the cremmy. Miss Lord was already in the worther's arms, and I was awfully afraid we're they are some, after all, but lanking very bod; the miss lord was because the gas had rome out and in the minutes they were safely married, and nobedy out of the family the wiser.
